

My Biggest Spending Mistake: AmOne Survey Results

September 19, 2019

Recreational items, such as ATVs and boats, topped the list of regrets, with cars and fitness equipment also viewed as significant mistakes.

September 19, 2019—Foster City, CA—Personal loan website, AmOne.com, surveyed consumers to find out their biggest spending mistake ever. The good news: most respondents' greatest mistake cost them $5,000 or less. The bad news: the second-largest group surveyed (28%) reports their biggest mistake set them back $20,001 or more.

The report notes that the items consumers most regret purchasing are:

- Toys like RVs, ATVs, and boats (22%)
- Car (19%)
- Fitness equipment (18%)
- Education (12%)
- Real estate (12%)

Men were more likely than women to rue expenditures on cars; of those remorseful about an auto purchase, 58% were male. Similarly, 56% of those unhappy with a toy, such as an RV, ATV or boat, were men.

Women had an edge on second thoughts about fitness equipment purchases, with 52% of those listing such equipment as a mistake being female.
